

Conference room doors

Commercial real estate solutions

Conference rooms typically must accommodate large groups both during working hours and after business hours, whether for a meeting or public event, and often must remain unlocked most of the day.

Maintaining access control is an important part of knowing who has used the room and when, as well as ensuring the safety and security of the rest of the building.

Conference room door operational requirements:

- Doors are usually unlocked during the day and secured after hours
- There should be free ingress and egress at all times
- Access authorized by valid credential
- Wire exit devices to fire alarm system are needed
- Exit device latch bolts must extend upon signal from fire alarm system

Innovative solutions for conference room doors

Allegion has developed smart solutions specifically for this highly used door, keeping in mind the need for frequent controlled access, safety and seamless egress at all times, including emergencies.

Von Duprin® Concealed Vertical Cable exit device

- A new generation of exit devices. The CVC system is a new system that will replace rods permanently.
- Features one simple flexible cable assembly that drops easily inside the door to effectively secure exit devices.
- Enables door maintenance to be performed while doors are still hanging, making maintenance faster and minimizing security risks by eliminating the need for doors to be removed.
- Meets building code.
- Easy to install and maintain.

There's nothing else like it in the industry.
